

The Missionary Journey Home

Posted on October 6, 2010 by Laura

Its almost time to leave the green fields, the wind, the rain and the turning leaves of Scotland to fly the many miles to Harare, Zimbabwe.

For Colin, Scotland has pretty much always been home. He did leave for a short while whilst attending Bible College in Capel, Surrey but his heart has always been in Scotland.....until now!

The land and people of Zimbabwe have captivated him and have called him to themselves and for me, his wife Laura, this now brings the opportunity to return home after ten years away.

It is with some sense of sorrow that I leave this beautiful land of Scotland for it is here I began my married life with my husband, here I was able to attend university and gain a useful practical education which will allow me to return home and to play a part in the rebuilding of my country and it is here that my parents and sister live, where I have friends and have built a life.

But...as I look to the future and contemplate returning to the land of my birth, home of my heart, there is a passion stirring deep within and I know, that I know, that I know – that this is all part of the greater plan and purpose for my life.

It is not a whimsical notion impulsively arrived at, nor a decision based on a warm and fuzzy memory – no – this is a decision that has been made based on prayer, on counsel, on confirmation, and it comes with it a sense that destiny has come full circle.

